the AlertDialog color to red or blue. I find the answer here, but it uses the xml style to set the action bar color. If I want to change the color programmatically, how do I achieve it? A: Put this code on your onCreate method: `getActionBar().setBackgroundDrawable(new ColorDrawable(Color.RED));` `getActionBar().setTitleTextColor(Color.RED);` A:

It really depends on what you want to change. If you want to change the text color or background,

I suggest using the `ActionBarCompat` class instead of the `ActionBar`. These are the properties you can set.

ActionBar.setTitle(text);
ActionBar.setSubtitle(text);
ActionBar.setDisplayUseLogoEnabled(boolean);
ActionBar.setDisplayShowHo

method of website content displaying. The background details are extremely important for web page content to add more definition to the image. Textual details have become less important, as the layout and colors of the style of the text are more important. The background image tends to take the place of the little information in the areas where the text does not go. These types of details need to be adjusted to the best
